Description

Like its Wicker Park counterpart, the Uptown Holiday Club isn't quite as much fun as it thinks it is. The dimly-lit bar-restaurant is decorated with some obligatory throwback d*cor, such as a gigantic portrait of the rat pack and a kitschy photo booth, but it lacks a certain coziness and warmth that would make it the swinging joint it wants to be.

That's not to say that it's not a fine place to grab some beers and food, though. It's not dissimilar to a scaled-back Bar Louie, in the manner that it's a fine place to go but not necessarily a destination.

Most notable about the Holiday Club are its daily specials, with half price draft beer (with a respectable draft list), pitchers, half price pizza and 25¢ chicken wings topping the list. The versatile menu varies from good ol' fashioned burgers to more healthfully minded (and generous) veggie quesadillas to the delicious and chichi Margherita pizza, featuring tomatoes, fresh mozzarella and a thin spreading of pesto.

Also redeeming the rather generic feel of the restaurant is a friendly staff, a rockin' jukebox and a pooltable...just be sure to watch out for errant 8-balls as you eat and drink. (Claire Zulkey)
